

Drawing upon the findings of the Erasmus+ project MUSIC - Making Universities Ready for Social Inclusion and Cultural Diversity, this conference focuses on the inclusion of students with migration and refugee background into European universities and will explore different theoretical and policy approaches, in particular following recent developments in Ukraine.

Zooming in on the Austrian case, the event will then analyse the current institutional framework on social and educational inclusion and discuss the reforms that can be developed to strengthen the university system.

In line with the project's objectives, the goal of the conference is to improve the institutional, political, and administrative processes in view of removing social and educational barriers for students with migration and refugee background.
